About Us

Frontline Africa Advisory is a level 1 BBB-EE strategic advisory firm that specialises in Public Policy and Regulatory Affairs, Government Relations, Political Risk and Research, Political Communication and Community Engagement. We assist private companies and entities to understand and build meaningful relationships with critical stakeholders, as well as to engage meaningfully with the public policy making process.

Our political risk advisory is based on first-hand engagements with political role players. It is founded on a deep understanding of South Africa's political, social and economic dynamics. Our background as practitioners of public policy gained from years of working in the public sector gives us a 'coalface' understanding of policy making processes and we use this experience to inform our advice to clients and to craft engagement strategies that reflect the complex dynamics involved in policy making in a complex country such as South Africa. We pride ourselves on our ability to deliver client-oriented solutions that aim to achieve mutually beneficial outcomes.

Our Services

PUBLIC POLICY & REGULATORY AFFAIRS

We have a solid understanding of policy making processes. We use this understanding to anticipate policy developments and advise our clients accordingly. We gather insights from across the policy spectrum, including government, parliament, political parties, private sector and non governmental organisations. We aim to bridge the gap between different stakeholders in the policy making process.

GOVERNMENT RELATIONS

Government relations sits at the heart of any public affairs strategy. Our solid understanding of the policy making process has enabled us to map and build relations with technocrats, who are at the coalface of policy making. We assist companies in building relations beyond politicians, who in most occasions do not have guarantee of staying in one portfolio for the duration of a government term. Our government relations strategy focuses on departmental officials, who are responsible for the day to day policy engagements and development.

POLITICAL RISK & RESEARCH

In South Africa, Political Risk is a feature of doing business across the globe. Businesses that do not have their pulse on developing threats are likely to find themselves overtaken by events and unable to interpret the environment and related developments optimally. We pride ourselves in our ability to track political developments, analyse risks they pose to businesses and advise on mitigation response plans. We use insights gained from direct interaction with political players to build a clear picture of future developments in a manner that allows for long term decision making.

Our Services

COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

Community Engagement is a fundamental pillar of any policy engagement and sustainability plan. No public policy strategy is complete without embedding clear community participation. We assist companies to engage communities and as well as facilitate participation by affected communities in the policy development process. Our experience is that companies that proactively engage communities in which they are already or planning on operating in, are often able to cultivate synergies and alignment of interests based on a clear definition of compatible objectives.

POLITICAL COMMUNICATION

Frontline Africa Advisory believes in broad based democratic policy making. We effectively use various (relevant) platforms to create awareness and reach of key political stakeholders that are critical to achieving client's objectives i.e policy formulation players.

The media and social media are a critical lever for the dissemination of key messaging and creating policy resonance. We make use of our broad media contacts and social media presence to assist clients with creating awareness to the broader South African public about their broad policy positions.

Our Services

STAKEHOLDER PERCEPTION SURVEY

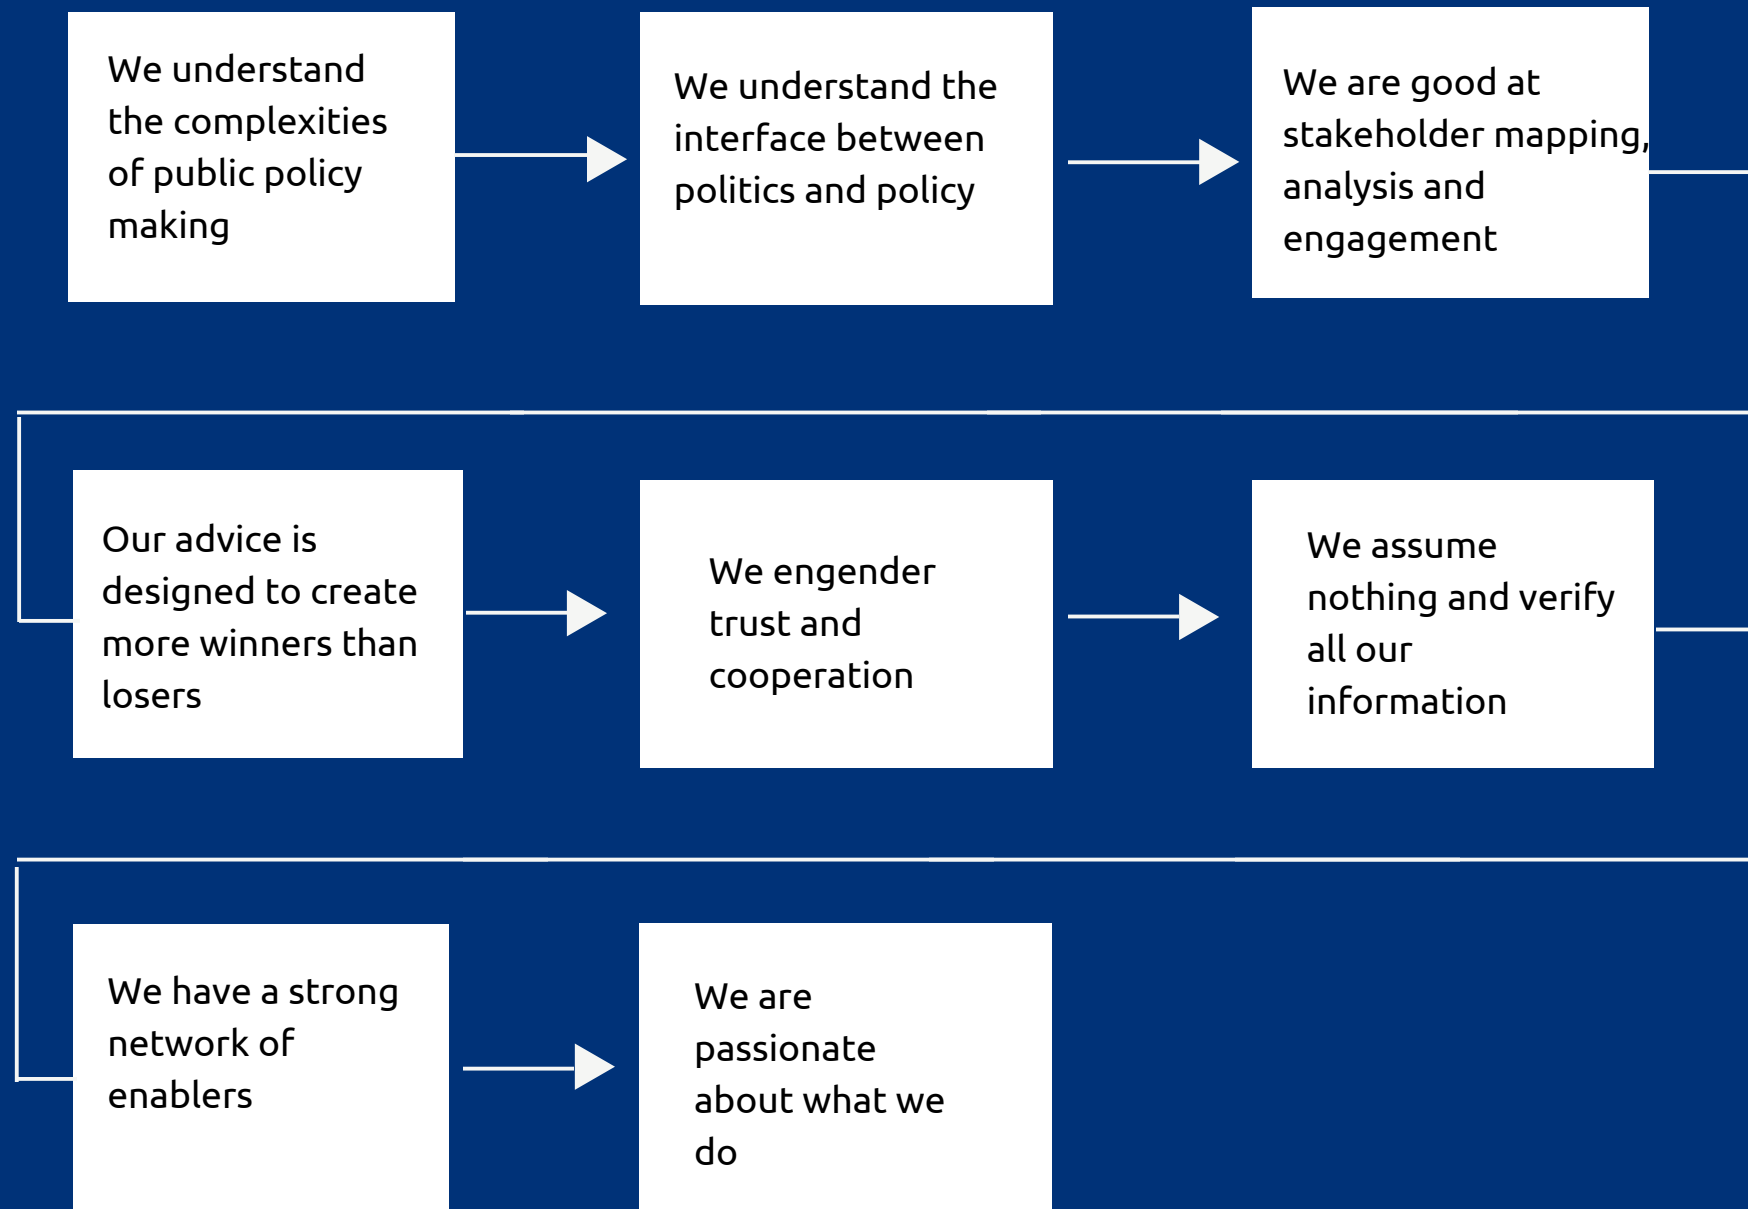

Any organisation operating in South Africa engages with various types of stakeholders in different environments. Periodically, it is critical for any organisation to conduct a perception survey to determine the level of satisfaction amongst its various stakeholder populations in relation to its programmes and communication thereof.

Frontline Africa Advisory's perception survey helps organisations to determine areas of improvement across the key organisation's functions. The perception survey is also used to identify strategies that can possibly enhance the organisation's levels of service or communication of its programmes to key stakeholders.

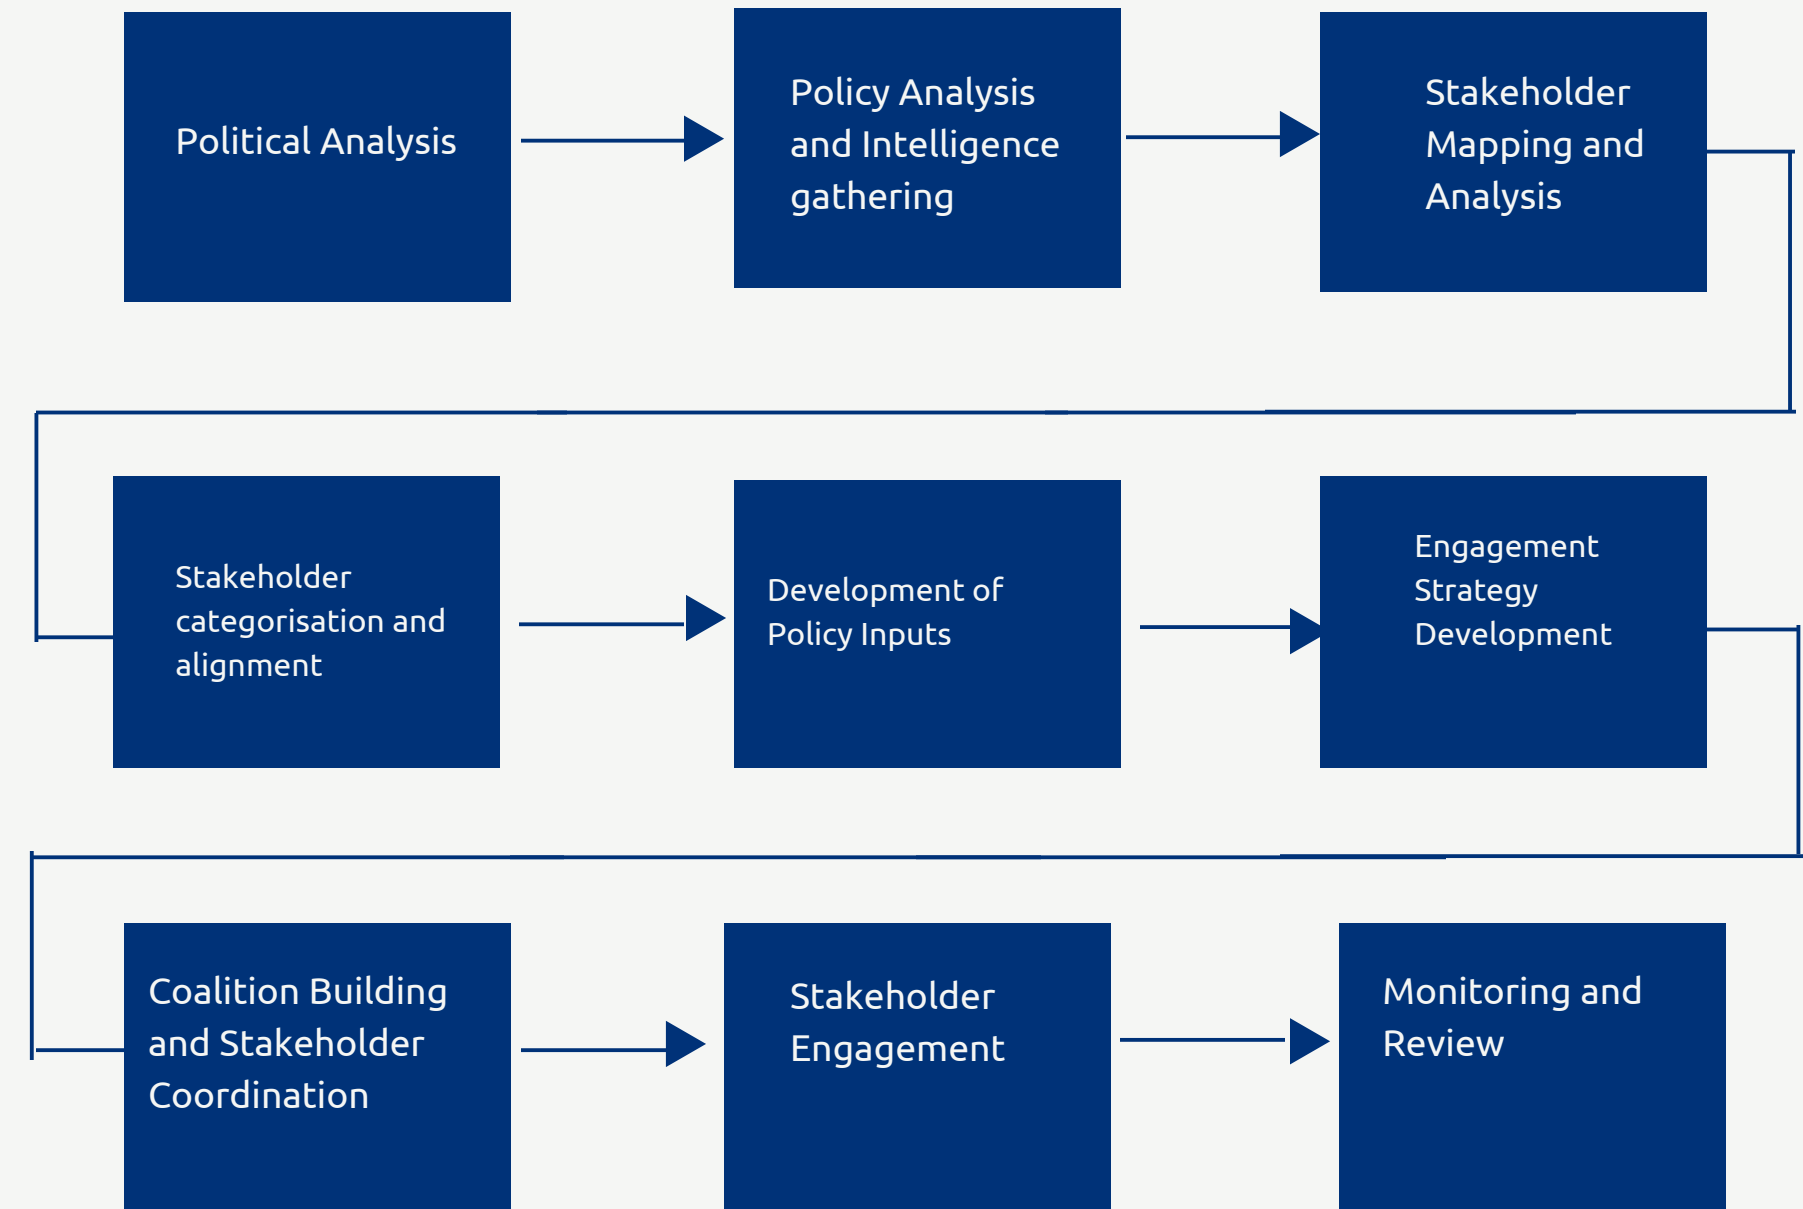

Our extensive understanding of South Africa's social, economic, political and policy space enables us to form a complete picture of stakeholder perceptions. At Frontline Africa Advisory we help you learn, interpret, and understand what your most important stakeholders think about you. Our process is grounded on an in-depth scoping of relevant issues affecting your sector. Our expertise in stakeholder mapping and management enables us to build a complete picture of your stakeholder ecosystem, prioritise relevant stakeholders, and build their profiles based on their importance for your business objectives.

Through one-on-one interviews with targeted stakeholders, we can build a comprehensive picture of their perceptions about your programmes and company. Finally, based on the findings, we develop a set of recommendations that can assist our clients to accentuate positive views, while minimising negative perceptions.

Why Us?

Engagement Approach

Our Team

Our team is vastly experienced in dealing with highly complex regulatory matters and years of experience of working in the public sector has put us in a position to understand intimately unique client requirements. This knowledge is used to customize tailored solutions that support the achievement of business imperatives. We are exceptionally positioned to understand not only the needs of the client, but to mould engagement strategies geared to support governments in the achievement of their strategic objectives.

Our understanding of both the public and private sectors allows us to create client specific solutions that not only solve immediate challenges, but also foster long term sustainable relationships built around institutionalized frameworks, and deeper understanding of stakeholders' respective strategic priorities.

Our strong focus on creating value for all stakeholders gives us the ability to shift perceptions and set the conditions for mutually beneficial conversations.
